Your seiso nephilim here to fill the world with hopium!" A Nephilim who was once the embodiment of hope back in "The Paradise". While she has left to set off on an adventure, she continues to deliver hope through her lyrics and songs, with determination in her voice. She also bears the precarious and unstable dual nature of a half-demon and half-angel; this phenomenon can be observed on rare occasions, in the form of the most unpredictably yaba—ahem, "surprising", comments from IRyS herself. Bewildering those around her is but another unexpected charm of her duality.[8] IRyS, a half-demon, half-angel also known as a Nephilim, once brought hope to "The Paradise" during the ancient age. Her full name is ██████████ Irys. This current era, riddled with despair and desperation, has brought upon her second awakening. She has arrived to deliver hope, with her feelings put into her lyrics and songs, and determination in her voice. Though she tends to retain her Nephilim form, she is still quite young within her race. With emotion and "other factors," it is possible that her form may lean to either side. When that occurs, she bears a brief change in her appearance. She does not speak of the events that preceded her second awakening. She faces ever forward, perhaps because she is Hope Incarnate, though no one knows for sure. Or could it be... "The future is not what helps people; the future is made with our own hands. Salvation is hypocrisy. If people know they are to be saved, they simply will not try. From the depths of despair: a glimmer of light, the warmth of recovery. As long as we are with hope, we live. We stand tall."[9] IRyS is a sweet, somewhat shy girl who holds positivity close to her heart, looking on the brighter side of things while encouraging others to do the same. At the same time, she often displays a more "sadistic" side with a penchant for violence and (often unintentionally) saying questionable things. The duality of her personality is often joked about by her fans as the dichotomy between her angelic and demonic sides. IRyS can't help but talk from time to time through pervy nuances, even by accident. Her speaking voice is high-pitched, soft and calm, akin to Yukihana Lamy's, though she can produce a more powerful and deeper tone when singing, similarly to Tokoyami Towa's vocal capability. She has long, vibrant reddish-pink hair with a magenta and light blue eye. She has pointed ears and sharp purplish black horns with black and white diamond shaped halos. On 30 November 2020, hololive's official Twitter account announced the start of auditions for a VSinger for hololive English; auditions were open until 29 January JST.[10] On 7 July 2021, a premiere countdown started on the hololive English channel titled "#CountdownWitnesser #hololiveEnglish." As the 8 hour countdown reached its end, a new video was released on the channel. This video was an animated teaser video revealing IRyS as part of "Project: HOPE", as well as becoming the first VSinger introduced to hololive English.[11][12] Her Twitter account was created in February 2021, while her YouTube channel was created on 20 May 2021. After making her first tweet on 7 July, her YouTube channel and Twitter account were restricted due to excessive activity.[13][14] In the following days prior to her debut IRyS reached 200,000 subscribers on her YouTube channel. On 11 July 2021, just hours before her debut stream, the restriction on her Twitter account was lifted.[15] IRyS debuted with an introductory stream on her YouTube channel later the same day, where she presented a short version of her first original song and PV "Caesura of Despair." IRyS also announced that she would release her first EP ■ Caesura of Despair the next day on 12 July on various streaming platforms.[16] She also crossed the 300,000 Youtube subscribers milestone after her debut. On 12 July, she reached 400,000 subscribers on YouTube channel during her second stream.[17] On 18 July, one week after her debut, IRyS reached 500,000 subscribers on YouTube, surpassing Gawr Gura's record of 13 days. This record was later topped by holoJP's Gen 6th member Sakamata Chloe. IRyS is the 39th hololive member to reach this milestone. On the same day, she released her first solo cover song "Inochi" by AZKi. On 29 July, IRyS held her first official collaboration with another hololive member, playing Just Shapes & Beats with Mori Calliope.[18] On 13 August, IRyS announced the opening of her channel's membership feature.[19] On 24 August, IRyS reached 600,000 subscribers on YouTube. On 10 November, IRyS reached 700,000 subscribers on YouTube.[20] On 26 December, IRyS released a new original song "Sparks of Joy." On 12 January, IRyS released her second EP "Journey." On 22 January, IRyS announced that she would go on "at least a one week" break from streaming due to the worsening of her throat's condition.[21] On 6 February, IRyS returned to her activities. IRyS retains her low helix twintails, but with less layers and they are not tied together at the tips like they used to, instead they are decorated with black ribbons. For her clothing, IRyS wears a shoulderless white dress with black straps that shows her cleavage. The dress is decorated with a black and magenta ribbon and black four pointed stars. As a running joke, they are constantly getting "married" and "divorced," with "BaeRyS" being their unofficial pairing name. - The concept that they were "married" originated from a "Minecraft" stream on 29 September 2021. The aim was to construct the portal area for the hololive English server, which would be close to the transition point where they could move to the hololive JP server and viceversa.[55][56] To pass the time in "Minecraft," both chose adjacent beds where they would go to sleep. In the following morning, Baelz would give IRyS a baked potato as a bento similar to the mannerisms of a Japanese housewife. IRyS would accept the "bento," jokingly commenting that it was not enough and that she expected more. This led to them role-playing an unhappily married couple, leading to the start of the running joke that they were "married" and were getting "divorced." - To pass the time in "Minecraft," both chose adjacent beds where they would go to sleep. - On 4 January 2022, during a "Minecraft" stream, both entered Pavolia Reine's room in Ouro Kronii's base (the Bunkeronii). There, they read the existing "fanfictions" written by other members. Eventually, they decided to write a "fanfiction" together, which would be titled "A Night Like Any Other." The setting of this fiction was that they were in an adjacent room to the events that were depicted in another "fanfiction" titled "Noise Complaint." [58][59] In the fanfiction, the fictional IRyS told Baelz that she brought the Monopoly board game, and that they would be playing it "on the bed." It ends with them "preparing their hearts for one SPICY game." This resulted in the term "Monopoly" being used by IRyS and the fanbase as a substitute for sexual activities.

The term "nephilim" appears in the Bible (Genesis 6:1-4; Numbers 13:32-33), where they refer to an ancient group of people sometimes interpreted as giants or fallen angels, beings who served God but were cast out for rebellious against Him. By some interpretations, the nephilim lived on Earth and intermarried with humans, but were wiped out in the Biblical flood which Noah and his descendants survived by building his ark. The unofficial term for an angel-demon hybrid would be most likely "Nephalem", coming from the Diablo franchise and other medias. - The term "nephilim" appears in the Bible (Genesis 6:1-4; Numbers 13:32-33), where they refer to an ancient group of people sometimes interpreted as giants or fallen angels, beings who served God but were cast out for rebelling against Him. Despite having wings, IRyS prefers to walk because of her fear of heights. IRyS claims that she dislikes Santa because, as she is a half-demon, Santa Claus never visited her, forgetting that she is also a half-angel. She claims that she dislikes ceiling fans out of two reasons, first being that she considered them inefficient and obsolete due to the advent of air conditioning, and second being that she became paranoid of ceiling fans falling on top of her ever since watching Final Destination, which caused her to develop a discomfort towards spinning objects, hence her dislike towards helicopters as well. - Despite having wings, IRyS prefers to walk because of her fear of heights. - IRyS claims that she dislikes Santa because, as she is a half-demon, Santa Claus never visited her, forgetting that she is also a half-angel. - She claims that she dislikes ceiling fans out of two reasons, first being that she considered them inefficient and obsolete due to the advent of air conditioning, and second being that she became paranoid of ceiling fans falling on top of her ever since watching Final Destination, which caused her to develop a discomfort towards spinning objects, hence her dislike towards helicopters as well. - In the past, she couldn't stand gore and was afraid of surgeries.
